Group Exhibitions

Julian's work is in the collection of 'Dan Klein Associates - Experts in Contemporary Glass' and can be seen in churches in Oxford and Michelmersh (Hampshire).

Maker's statement

Julian has always been interested in lettering and when her family grew up she took an Adult Education Calligraphy course and joined the Oxford Scribes and the Society of Scribes and Illuminators (SSI) based in London. She attended their workshops and developed her skills with their tutors. During the last 20 years she became fascinated by letters and their different forms. At first she practised traditional calligraphy using pen, ink and paper ; then 10 years ago she learnt to engrave glass, found it much easier than she had imagined, and combined the two disciplines - lettering and engraving. She became a member of the Guild of Glass Engravers and later an Associate Fellow. After 10 years of calligraphy on paper, Julian decided to engrave her lettering on glass, fascinated by the effects and reflections produced by its transparency. She combined the two techniques - calligraphy and engraving.
